McCord Links Mitchell to 'Blackmail'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, already indicted in connection with a secret $200,000 contribution received while he was President Nixon's campaign chief, now has been linked in sworn testimony to both the Watergate break-in and a short-lived plot to steal "blackmail" information on a Democratic presidential contender.

Convicted Watergate conspirator James W. McCord Jr. said in a 363-page sworn statement released Thursday that he was told that Mitchell ordered the June 17 break-in at the Democrat's Watergate headquarters because he was pleased with the results of a earlier burglary there.

McCord said he also was told that Mitchell received reports on conversations monitored on tapped telephone lines of high-level Democrats; approved a $250,000-plus budget for political espionage, and asked his political agents to get the blackmail material from a Las Vegas, Nev., newspaper office.

He said the material concerned a Democratic presidential candidate, whom he did not name. But he indicated it "might possibly" have been Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

McCord, who was serving as security chief for Nixon's campaign when he was arrested in the June 17 break-in, said all his information about Mitchell came from co-conspirator G. Gordon Liddy, former campaign finance counsel. Liddy has refused to testify.

Mitchell was indicted in New York Thursday along with former Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans on charges of obstructing a federal investigation—"by deceit, craft, trickery and means that are dishonest"—in exchange for a secret campaign donation from financier Robert L. Vesco. Stans also served as Nixon's chief campaign fund-raiser.

Mitchell and Stans, the first former Cabinet officers to be indicted since the Teapot Dome scandal 50 years ago, also became the first of Nixon's high-level campaign officials to be charged in the ever-widening story of illegal campaign tactics in 1972. More indictments are expected from a grand jury sitting in Washington.

Describing the indictments as "irresponsible," Mitchell spent 2½ hours under questioning by the staff of the Senate Watergate investigating committee Thursday. Asked by a woman reporter if he also expects to be indicted on charges directly related to the Watergate affair, he replied: "Honey, I have had a lot of thoughts about that and they all come to 'no'."

In other developments: Attorney General-designate Elliot L. Richardson promised to provide the Senate Judiciary Committee with the names of six or eight persons from which he will choose a special prosecutor into the Watergate affair.

—In an effort to bolster his scandal-scarred Cabinet and staff, Nixon nominated CIA Director James R. Schlesinger as defense secretary and asked former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally to become a part-time aide.

—Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., of the Watergate investigating committee promised his hearings will not impair the government prosecution, but he added it is more important to get to the truth than send "one or two people to jail."

—Former Nixon campaign treasurer Hugh Sloan Jr., in sworn testimony released Thursday, said he tried to warn top White House aides last June of the potential for a national scandal, but they were more concerned about protecting the President.

—Former White House counsel John W. Dean, who was fired April 30, said there has been a "concerted effort to get me" before he reveals all that he knows about the political espionage case.

McCord said Liddy told him Mitchell "approved, discussed, reviewed" the espionage plan while he was still attorney general. McCord said he joined the project because Mitchell's approval made it seem legal.

Wiretap Issue Snarls 'Papers' Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Pentagon papers trial moves into new legal entanglements today following disclosures that Daniel Ellsberg was overheard by federal wiretappers whose records have vanished.

The FBI revealed the government researcher was heard on a wiretap up to two years before he released the Pentagon papers to the news media.

U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne, demanding that the government answer to him today about the disappearance of 1969 and 1970 wiretap logs, also has told attorneys for both sides to be prepared for legal arguments on the wiretap issue.

The team of defense attorneys urged questioning of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and perhaps President Nixon about the secret wiretaps at the home of Ellsberg's friend Morton Halperin, a one-time White House official.

With legal grounds apparently mounting for possible dismissal of the case against Ellsberg and Anthony J. Russo, Byrne has the choice of deciding for or against dismissal after today's arguments or of waiting for more evidence from the government.

Ellsberg and Russo are accused of espionage, conspiracy and theft for copying the Pentagon papers, a top secret study of U.S. involvement in Vietnam, in 1969.

Byrne's two-week probe of possible government violations in connection with the trial spread to two fronts as a result of Thursday's wiretap disclosures. He was probing not only Watergate and White House links to a burglary of the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, but also sought to bring out missing records of the apparently suppressed wiretap evidence.

While the wiretap dispute deflected attention from the central Watergate-White House involvements, the judge kept an eye on that probe. He released to the defense team a document involving former presidential counsel Charles W. Colson. The government prosecutor opposed making the Colson document public, calling it irrelevant to the trial.

The paper, an FBI report on a Colson interview, said Colson was told that the burglary had occurred. It said Colson was later instructed by former White House Counsel John W. Dean III and former presidential advisor John D. Ehrlichman to remain silent about the burglary when questioned by the FBI and the Watergate prosecutor.

Testimony and affidavits submitted to Byrne since he launched his probe April 26 have said the Watergate conspirators G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt engineered a break-in at the Beverly Hills office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist in September of 1971. Hunt told the Watergate grand jury they aimed to get Ellsberg's psychiatric records.

The eavesdropping was disclosed in a memorandum by the new acting FBI director, William D. Ruckelshaus, who said that newspaper reports on the trial had spurred him to launch a special investigation of possible wiretapping in the case.

On May 4, Ruckelshaus said, "I initiated an investigation to interview present and retired FBI personnel for the purpose of determining, if possible, whether there had been any such taps."

He said an FBI employee remembered that Ellsberg had been overheard "talking from an electronic surveillance of Dr. Morton Halperin's residence. It is the employee's recollection that the surveillance was of Dr. Halperin and that Mr. Ellsberg was then a guest of Dr. Halperin," Ruckelshaus added.

Ruckelshaus noted that "the investigation, of course, is not complete and further facts bearing upon the wire taps may be uncovered."

Byrne, unwilling to wait for the end of the investigation, ordered the prosecutor to get more data — particularly the logs of the overheard conversations.

Within hours, Asst. U.S. Atty. David R. Nissen presented the judge with new FBI statements just submitted to the Justice Department. They said that it was now known that the surveillance of Halperin's home occurred between the spring of 1969 and June of 1971.

Nixon Continues Intensive Staff Shakeup

(Combined Wire Services) WASHINGTON — In the staff shakeup brought on by Watergate, President Nixon has abolished a system of "super secretaries" which critics said shielded him from the public, the press and even members of his own Cabinet.

In a series of moves Thursday, Nixon shifted CIA Director James R. Schlesinger over to head the Defense Department; promoted one of Schlesinger's deputies, William F. Colby, to head the Central Intelligence Agency, and brought former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally back into the White House as a special, part-time adviser on both foreign and domestic matters.

He also named J. Fred Buzhardt Jr., the Defense Department's chief lawyer, to the temporary post of special assistant to handle matters relating to the Watergate case from White House standpoint and to help develop proposals for new law to prevent shady campaign practices in the future.

Nixon disclosed the changes in an hour and a half Cabinet session in which he also announced he was abolishing a four-month-old system under which three Cabinet members held super secretary status and settled disputes among the various departments before they ever got to the President.

Nixon's decision was announced by his spokesman, Ronald L. Ziegler, who said the President told his department heads he wanted a "more direct line of communication with them."

This following the departure of the chief White House gatekeepers—H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman—apparently signaled dismantling of the "Berlin Wall" which critics said isolated the President from his subordinates.

Connally, the only Democrat to serve in the Nixon Cabinet before his departure last summer, recently switched from the Democratic to the Republican party.

Ziegler said Connally would have an office in the Executive Office Building next door to the White House and "be available when the President wants to call on him, and we assume it will be frequent."

Several GOP governors say John B. Connally faces a difficult task to win 1976 presidential nomination. Story on Page 24.

He will receive no compensation for his advice and will continue practicing law in Houston, Tex., but Ziegler said he expected Connally to be in Washington two or three days a week.

Ziegler said the President saw no conflict of interest in having Connally as an adviser while he continues to practice law because he will "not have operational responsibility."

Harvard is a veteran of the first Nixon administration. He first came into the White House as the assistant budget director, then moved to the Atomic Energy Commission as chairman in 1971 and became CIA director last February.

If confirmed by the Senate, he will succeed Elliot L. Richardson who was shifted last week to the attorney general's job to head the Watergate investigation.

If James Schlesinger lives up to his record, he will be one of the most tight-fisted defense secretaries in history.

Back when he was a top official of President Nixon's budget office, Schlesinger forced through billions of dollars in defense cuts.

Now that he has been named to become secretary of defense, the armed services and many civilian officials at the Pentagon are wondering whether he will be as zealous in holding down military spending.

Officials who have served under him in a series of key posts say they are willing to bet on it.

Youngest man ever chosen secretary of defense, the 44-year-old Schlesinger has had perhaps broader preparation than any who preceded him.

His expertise in national security issues, particularly nuclear weaponry, dates back at least a decade to his experience as director of strategic studies at the Rand Corp., a "think tank" which conducts sensitive analyses for defense agencies.

Later, as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, Schlesinger directed work on nuclear-weapons advances.

He sharpened his management tools in supervising a major streamlining of the AEC and then put those tools to use again during his brief tour as Central Intelligence Agency director, where he started to chop deadwood.

Housewives Enliven Legislature Meeting

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON The "irateness" of Ulster County housewives, seeking support of the Ulster County Legislature, "in present and future consumer protests," spilled over into the Thursday night meeting of the County Board with the result that a resolution supporting them failed and Republicans and Democrats ended up leveling charges and counter-charges of "blackmail, intimidation" and "irresponsible demagoguery" at each other and the housewives.

The housewives, led by Mrs. Ethel Thomas, are members of the National Consumer Congress, and as such asked County Legislator Alex J. Nirenberg (D-Dist. 10) to sponsor a resolution to endorse "the effort of the National Day of Protest" and to urge all residents of Ulster County "to join with their local protest groups in all future efforts of consumer protest."

The 23 Republicans present voted to refer the matter to the Legislative and Rules Committee because the "intent" of the resolution was to "bring the Legislature to 'future' light of the past have not seen the protests. William West (R-Dist. 12) claimed the word 'future' referred.

was too broad a generalization. The nine Democrats all voted against the committee referral with Louis Klein (D-Dist. 7) stating, "I feel we should all stand and be counted."

It was Majority Leader Ernest John Gardner (R-Dist. 11) who charged Mrs. Thomas with "blackmail," recalling that at the 4 p.m. session of the board, Mrs. Thomas had said she "would go out and work against any legislator who voted against the resolution."

"I do not respond to intimidation," Gardner said. "I could have voted for this," Clarence Raichle (R-City) said, in casting his vote to refer, adding that he objected only to the wording of the resolution rather than the merits of the proposal.

Similar sentiments were echoed by other Republicans including Brian White (R-Dist. 9) who said "Anyone who feels this resolution will die in committee is 100 per cent wrong. It will be back in some better and proper form."

Nirenberg maintained that the resolution would never come out of committee and cited in the stances in which his resolutions of the past have not seen the light of day since being referred.

It was West who accused whom were in attendance department takes over dug Nirenberg of "irresponsible ap- plauded the Democrats' aftercare cars, the state should demagoguery."

Minority Leader Dr. Gerald Mrs. Belle Sundeen of A resolution requesting that P. Gorman (D-City) suggested Kerhonkson rose to her feet to the Environmental Management that "the intent of the resolution tell the Republican side of the Council conduct a study of the is evident," even if the verbiage aisle that the housewives did proposed Central Hudson is in question. He said he had not intend blackmail but rather facility on the old Terry planned to amend the proposal "a new address."

The board acted favorably on drawn by White, the sponsor, a number of other resolutions, who said he has learned that the most significant of which the State Office of Planning was an agreement to purchase Services and the Ulster County Planning Board have agreed to conduct a similar study.

Another resolution of Nirenberg's proposing the opening of a Motor Vehicle Branch Office in Southern Ulster County was defeated by both Republicans and Democrats.

Later, four legislators announced they wished to have as opposing two bills before the State Senate, one relating to the financing and administering of George Barthel (D-Dist. 10), state courts and the other Ralph Brach (R-Dist. 9) and relating to the Ulster County Robert H. Kuhlmann (R-Dist. 10), Probation Department takeover of drug control commission. The board approved two aftercare cases. The county medical scholarships, created legislators feel that if the state an agricultural district in takes over administering the Modena and withdrew a courts it should also take over resolution settling a claim the financing and they also feel against the county, pending that if the county probation more information.

Kissinger, Tho to Meet on Thursday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger, just back from a Moscow trip, will meet in Paris Thursday with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho to discuss ways to shore up the shaky Vietnam cease-fire agreement, the White House announced today.

Kissinger will be switching his focus to the Indochina situation after reporting to

Nixon on what he described as "major progress" in discussions with Leonid I. Brezhnev and other Soviet leaders on issues preceding Brezhnev's forthcoming Washington summit visit.

The groundwork for his meeting next week with Tho has been laid during Paris conferences by U.S. and North Vietnam representatives.

The United States and Saigon have accused the North Vietnamese of committing or supporting hundreds of violations of the cease-fire. Hanoi has made similar charges "strict implementation" of the resumption of talks of U.S. economic aid to Hanoi and of minesweeping operations in Haiphong harbor — suspended by the United States in protest far as the United States was concerned — is to discuss

House Blocks Cambodian Bombing Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Time has run out in Congress on President Nixon's policies in Indochina.

For the first time since the war began, both houses now appear to have solid majorities demanding an end to U.S. involvement in the conflict. The House reversed its eight-year stand of unwavering support for the war and voted 219 to 188 Thursday to block funding for the bombing of Cambodia.

Cheers went up as the electronic scoreboard clock clicked off the final seconds of the vote handing President Nixon a major foreign policy setback.

"Give them a little more time," pleaded Chairman George Mahon of the House Appropriations Committee, his lanky Texas frame leaning over a lectern in the well as he faced nearly 100 of his colleagues and urged that Nixon be given a few more weeks to obtain compliance with the Jan. 28 cease-fire accords.

"The Communists are testing us," Rep. Robert Sikes, D-Fla., warned. "They want to see how far they can push us. This amendment would play into their hands."

"We are at the verge of possibly getting a peace agreement now," implored Rep. Alphonzo Bell, R-Calif. "Right today, Henry Kissinger has been in Russia to talk about the possibility of getting them to twist some arms. Don't pull the rug out from under him."

But the old arguments did not go down. The House rose up in a roar and passed an amendment by Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., to block a $430 million funds transfer to relieve budget shortages at the Pentagon created by the war's continuing drain of resources.

That action was followed minutes later by approval of another amendment to the $2.8 billion catchall supplemental appropriations bill by Rep. Clarence D. Long, D-Md., barring use of any of funds in the bill to "support directly or indirectly combat activities in, over or from the shores of Cambodia by United States forces."

A subdued House Republican Leader Gerald Ford, shaken by the day's events, said afterwards it was "a sad day in the House of Representatives." He spoke of "cringing and crumpling" in the body that had formerly backed Nixon to the hilt.

The votes themselves, even if they become law, in no way mandate an end to the war. Defense Secretary Elliot Richardson made it clear before hand that the bombing of Cambodia would continue regardless of the action on the Addabbo amendment. The Long amendment applies only to the money in the supplemental bill and does not specifically forbid the use of other appropriated funds to run the war.

If Congress does try to pass more sweeping legislation to cut off all appropriations for the war, it probably will elicit a Presidential veto. Neither the Senate nor the House now has the two-thirds majorities necessary to override.

FREEMAN ADS BRING FAST RESULTS

HAPPY ENDING — This photograph by an Army photographer, of Lt. Commander Edward Davis holding his pet dog, MaCo in Leola, Pa., after they were released from Hanoi prison camp, has a happy ending. Hand-to-Hand Fighting Near Phnom Penh Posts

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist forces struck in what military sources called "perfectly coordinated raids" Thursday less than five miles from Phnom Penh, killing 18 Cambodian troops in hand-to-hand combat at two government posts.

The sources said the attackers included both Viet Cong and North Vietnamese commandos.

At least 50 more troops were reported missing and six men wounded in attacks on government outposts at Prek Taley and Sopha Bal around two bridges along Highway 2, the sources said.

The Communists withdrew at dawn and field reports said the government troops reoccupied the outposts.

Survivors of the attack said they could hear Vietnamese coordinating the raid on radios.

Some of the troops were slain by bayonets after their hands were tied behind their backs, survivors said, and at one outpost bloodstains on a bullet-pocked wall indicated some victims were executed by a firing squad.

Some survivors said the Communists beat some defenders to death with rifle butts in the fierce fighting.

Neither of the bridges in the area was blown up. One was mined, sources said, but was only slightly damaged.

Field commanders estimated the size of the Communist force at about 250 men. They slipped into the two government positions under a barrage of mortar fire and rocket-propelled grenades, commanding officers said.

Among the dead, they said, was the officer in charge of the two camps.

U.S. warplanes again carried out heavy bombing strikes in southern Cambodia, hitting targets northwest of the capital along Highway 5 and south of Phnom Penh until heavy rains late in the day cut short bombing runs near the capital.

Military sources said the raids included strikes by swinging F111 fighters and strafing missions by Spectre gunships.

Four U.S. Air Force OV10 Bronco armed reconnaissance planes also carried out protective cover flights for a large convoy of supply trucks moving up Highway 4 from the major port of Kompong Som, 134 miles southwest of Phnom Penh.

Military sources said there were more heavy raids around the province capital of Takeo, 55 miles southwest of Phnom Penh on Highway 2.

A government announcement Thursday said the sale of gasoline for private use by motorists had been suspended because of acute fuel shortages in the capital.

In political developments, informed sources said a four-man "high political council" established to govern Cambodia will rule without a prime minister.

Booby Trap Backfires

BELFAST (UPI) — British officers said today the Irish Ulster Defense Regiment first volunteer from the south Republican Army blew one of its own teen-age volunteers to almost four years of violence bits while apparently attempting to rig another booby-trap ambush for troops on the Irish Republic border.

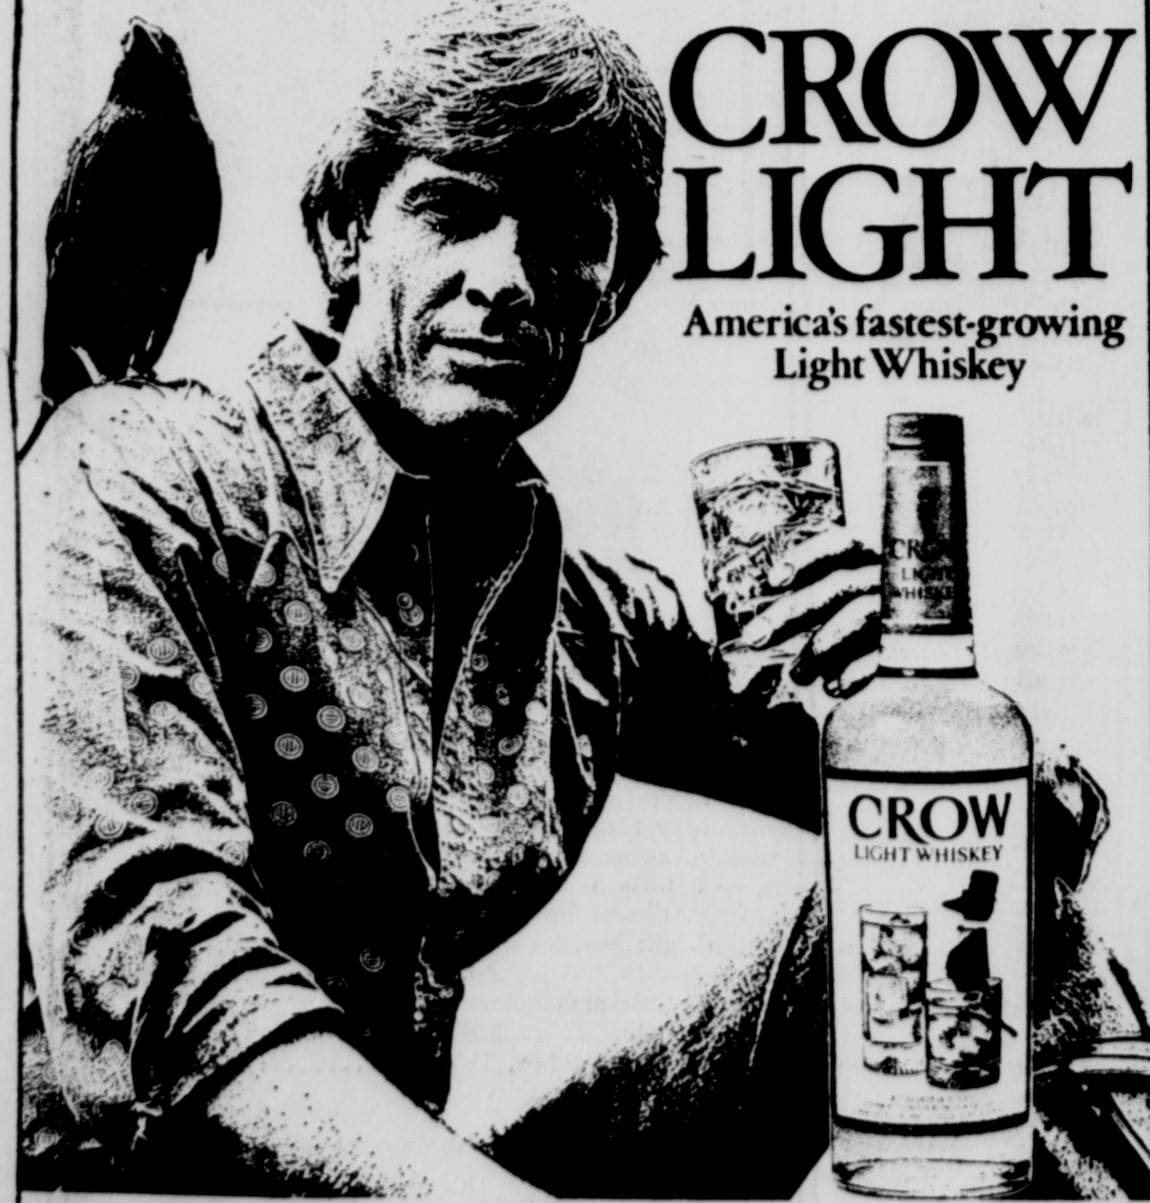

Their explanation followed the discovery Thursday of a badly mutilated body scattered amid three bomb craters on the border with the republic.

The blast and the assassina-

The "Provos" called him the first volunteer from the south to die "serving with his comrades in the north."

"It appears they were trying to set up another booby-trap ambush like the one that killed three of our men last Saturday," a British officer said.

A British helicopter spotted the body after farmers said they heard a blast. Fearing a possible trap, ground patrols went in only five hours later.

Funds Set for Roads

RHINEBECK

The Rhinebeck Town Board has decided to spend a lion's share of its federal revenue sharing funds this summer in putting the town roads back into shape.

According to Supervisor William Allen, a net figure of about $26,000 will remain after other expenditures have been met for some badly needed road repairs.

This does not include an expanded highway work crew this summer, enlarged by Highway Superintendent Orrin Van Eiten's request for two summer student helpers and changing one temporary part-time highway crewman to fulltime and permanent. This extra help is expected to cost another $9,400, said Allen.

The supervisor said that Dutchess County has sent up a representative of the highway department to review town roads with the highway superintendent in putting together cost figures.

And the county has recommended widening and renovation of the White Schoolhouse Road bridge, presently only one lane wide. Specifications will be drawn up for bidding purposes.

Following a dog kennel hearing Wednesday night, the town board took no action on the proposal to change permitted uses on three categories of land in the town. The proposal would make it mandatory to have at least ten acres for a kennel, and would specify a 320 foot distance from the kennel runs to adjacent property lines.

The move was prompted by a minor flood of applications for special permit for dog kennels in recent months, according to Allen.

The board set May 29 as the date for a public hearing on new subdivision regulations. They were approved by the Planning Board April 30 after the required public hearing, and the town hearing is being held on enforcement procedures for the law.

The present subdivision regulations in force were passed in the early 1960s, said Allen, and the new one will give the town more control and will attempt to follow the town master plan.

The town has started study on a town building code. The Planning Board has recommended adoption of the New York State Building Code.

Ralph Stewart was appointed to the Rhinebeck Environmental Commission, bringing that board up to full complement. Stewart is a school teacher and lives on Mill Road.

Lloyd To Hire Planner

HIGHLAND

The Lloyd Town Board Wednesday night authorized the hiring of a planner for cost estimates for the new proposed recreation facility to be located in the hamlet of Highland.

The board gained the approval of the department of Housing and Urban Development in March, 1973 for a federal grant for $56,000, approximately half of the expected cost when estimated two years ago when the application was submitted.

The project is nearing the stage of fruition after much work in a joint application by the Town of Lloyd and the citizens' Beautification Committee. The federal grant was made under the Open Space Program of HUD. An architect was hired to make a rendering of the proposal.

According to Town Supervisor Lou Foscaldi, the projected use of the four acres donated in 1955 by the local Chamber of Commerce includes tennis courts, handball courts, horse-shoe pitching area, a band shell, and a picnic grove.

He explained that inflation the past two years may necessitate shaving some of the projected costs from the park, and the town board is studying the situation at present to determine the best use of matching grant. The professional planner will be utilized to help in this area.

The board also awarded a contract to seal the district sewers, at a cost of about $15,000. The system was reviewed by television cameras last year.

And the board authorized an extension of the sewer district about one-quarter mile on Reservoir Road.

A public sale of bonds amounting to $240,000 for the Highland Water District was approved by the town board, to be opened June 6.

And advertising for bids for air conditioning the newly-renovated town hall was also approved by the board.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 11, 1973

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Representative Burt Talcott, R-Calif., the dapper sportsman from Salinas, is fond of lecturing his fellow congressmen on the rules of dress and decorum he thinks should be observed on the House floor.

Yet he didn't mind violating the rules of decorum to wangle prizes and trophies for the First Annual Congressional Golf Tournament last September. As chairman of the outdoor frivolous, he helped put the squeeze on Washington's lobbyists for a cornucopia of valuable gifts.

Talcott wasn't deterred at first by warnings that he might find out about the flood of sports equipment, TV sets, windbreakers, gift certificates and shiny merchandise that the lobbyists were donating. Representative John Hunt, R-N.J., even warned in a personal memo to Talcott that playing the tournament in Washington might be "too risky. Remember Anderson."

We apologize for taking so long to dig out the details. We have now learned, however, that gifts poured in for the congressional golfers from the industries they are supposed to oversee — Abbott Labs., American Can, Celanese, Fairchild Industries,

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Booty for a Golf Tournament

General Tire, Goodrich, Goodyear, Gulf Oil, Humble Oil, Japan Air Lines, Lockheed, Magnavox, Marriott Hotels, Northrop, Northwest Orient, Olin, Ralston Purina, Raytheon, Squibb and Uniroyal.

Couldn't Refuse

Generous gifts were also donated by trade organizations representing the textile makers, chicken raisers, cattlemen and broadcasters. Even American Standard in New York provided two gaily decorated toilet seats for some deserving congressman.

Talcott left it largely to his prize chairman, Rep. Roger Zion, R-Ind., to collect the booty. The amiable Zion mailed out a letter to some 200 lobbyists, soliciting prizes in language they couldn't refuse.

"You have a great opportunity to promote your product (or industry) to your elected Representatives," wrote Zion on official house stationery. He told the lobbyists that he hoped each of the 80 or 90 congressional duffers would "come home with a prize or two... Would you please find some suitable prize (or prizes)... and send same to me at the above address."

Zion's office filled up with so many fancy prizes that Talcott began to get uneasy. Quietly, he called potential donors to urge them not to give any more and apologized to more scrupulous congressmen about the Zion letter.

Still, the gifts gushed in. Representative William Dickinson, R-Ala., wrung 11 windbreakers from the Russell Company. Senator Paul Fannin, R-Ariz., notified Talcott he had come up with a set of woods from Ping Manufacturing.

Wilson Golf Bags

Representative Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, reported he could wangle five golf bags from Wilson Sporting Goods if Talcott wanted them, although Mayne advised cautiously that "I personally don't think (it) would be a good idea" to let Wilson handle all sports prizes as Wilson had offered.

The hole-in-one chairman, Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif., after failing to get Ford to "volunteer" a one-year free lease on a Pinto, approached the national Auto Dealers Association. He was referred to a car rental firm where he got the promise of a free three-month lease. But none of the congressmen got a hole-in-one.

Representative Harold Collier, R-Ill., arranged the tournament at famed Burning Tree, a private golf course. But he became so agast over the solicitation of gifts that he cancelled it. The tournament would instead on the golf course at nearby Andrews Air Force Base, since the brass hats, like the lobbyists, were in no position to refuse.

After chewing up the fairways at Andrews, the congressmen made one last assault on the lobbyists' pocketbooks. They were invited to attend a gala cocktail party at the expense of the U.S. Independent Telephone Association.

Footnote: Talcott is again heading up the annual Congressional Golf Tournament, but he assured us there'll be no more "general solicitation." Said the rueful Talcott: "We've all learned something."

MILLION-DOLLAR BRIBE? Representative Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., claims ITT's million-dollar offer to help finance a CIA sabotage operation against Chile's President Salvador Allende was a bribe. In a letter to departing Attorney General Richard Kleindienst, Rangel, an attorney, wrote: "In my opinion, this offer of money to the CIA was a violation of the federal bribery statute. It is difficult for me to see how an offer of one million dollars to the government could be construed in any other way than as an inducement meant to influence a certain policy decision. I am quite puzzled by the lack of action on the part of federal prosecutors."

WATERGATE FRIENDSHIP: At least one longstanding friendship has withstood the test of Watergate. Spencer Oliver, the Democratic official whose phone was tapped by the Watergate bugging crew, remains on close personal terms with President Nixon's speech writer, Pat Buchanan. The two grew up together in Washington. Although they wound up at opposite political poles, they still meet at night and argue their political differences over drinks. Incidentally, Buchanan has told Oliver he's convinced the President had no prior knowledge of the tap on Oliver's phone.

Panacea Becomes a Pain

On paper, it looks great. A four-day work week. Imagine. A three-day weekend of leisure every week.

Several years ago when the work schedule was changed in industries throughout the country, it looked like a trend that would take hold and revolutionize the working habits of millions.

Today, industry is having second thoughts after a study of results discloses that the shorter week has fallen far short of its goal and as a consequence a number of concerns has returned to the old five-day schedule.

The Wall Street Journal has made a survey of the situation and has come up with some revealing information proving that the best-laid plans of efficiency experts often go astray.

Most of the companies that instituted the four-day, 10-hour per day schedule did so for the same reasons, to cut overtime, reduce absenteeism, increase productivity and raise employee morale. In most cases, all of these things happened at the outset and in a few cases, they still are happening.

The standard schedule in a majority of the plants is half the workers off on Monday and the other half on Friday. But according to the newspaper study, in all too many instances either the workers found that family obligations prevented them from fully enjoying the time off, after being accustomed to three days of freedom, they looked forward to four—and absenteeism returned.

Thus a theoretical 40-hour work week became a 30-hour schedule and production suffered on the thinly manned Mondays and Fridays.

A common example cited was of the mother forced to get up at 5 a.m. to prepare her children for school prior to going on a 10-hour shift, then returning exhausted at night.

Most labor unions also oppose the change, feeling that acceptance of a longer day without overtime after eight hours is a step backward.

Another view, from a Pennsylvania State University professor, is that the revised schedule doesn't deal with the core problems of frustration, boredom and the need for job enrichment.

So what looked initially like a panacea for working America has turned out to be a pain instead and it appears that the efficiency experts will have to return to the drawing boards.

Flight Discounts Ending

Since everything must be equal these days, or it is called "discriminatory," the Civil Aeronautics Board has ordered all youth and family-fare discounts to be ended by June 1, 1974, as giving an advantage to youth and families that others do not have. The higher fares are to begin June 1, 1973, when stand-by youth fare would increase to 78 per cent of the regular fare, instead of the present stand-by youth ticket of 66.6 per cent of the regular fare. On December 1 this type of ticket would be advanced to 89 per cent of regular.

Families must begin to pay 83 per cent of the ordinary fare on June 1, 1973, and on December 1 lay out 92 per cent of the regular ticket, until the abolishment of all discounts, except for children under 12, on June 1, 1974.

This is bleak and harsh news to the hordes of Europe- and Asia-wandering youth who hit the airways each summer as casually as they used to board city buses to get to their schools and political rallies. It is also unfriendly information for husbands who have to travel so constantly that they have no home life at all, unless their wives are occasionally with them.

Worse yet, the extra income received by the airlines will not be passed on to the public in lower general fares. The CAB says the airlines can keep their gains from the higher rates. Our suggestion is that the money be used for greater air safety for both passengers and crew, principally the providing of a protected escape from a disabled plane, with survival kits, which air force crews now have.

Inside Report

Deception Was Common

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The depth of White House deception of President Nixon's own official family reached a barely credible low point in February when two top White House aides promised Secretary of Commerce Frederick Dent that Jeb Stuart Magruder was wholly innocent of any involvement in Watergate and ordered Dent to hire him.

Frederick Malek, who had been the President's personnel chief before becoming deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, was one of those two aides.

It is entirely possible that Malek was personally unaware of Magruder's deep involvement in Watergate, but that in itself would be a most sinister possibility. It would mean that the White House aides who did know the facts were using an unwitting Malek as their agent to place such Watergate-tainted aides as Magruder in new and high government posts.

But White House counsel John Dean III, described by high former administration officials as the second of the two White House aides involved in selling Magruder to Dent, most definitely did know all about Magruder's Watergate involvement.

Dean was the author of the in-house Watergate report for the President last summer which completely whitewashed the White House of any Watergate involvement. For Dean not to have known about the complexity of Magruder, then with the Committee to Reelect the President, is inconceivable.

But White House pals of Magruder, a protégé of ex-staff chief H. R. Haldeman, apparently felt more loyalty to Magruder for having agreed to deny under oath any Watergate knowledge or complicity than to Dent or to President Nixon's Commerce Department.

Dent, clearly concerned about what amounted to a White House order to give Magruder a $36,000-a-year job which did not require Senate confirmation, was told by the White House that Magruder had been "cleared by the (Watergate) grand jury" and that Dent had nothing to worry about. Dent also told friends that under American jurisprudence, a man is innocent until proven guilty.

Magruder worked in his Commerce Department job, driven around town in a chauffeured limousine paid for by the Committee to Reelect the President, until he was fired on April 27. That was shortly after he went back to federal prosecutors and began to sing.

GOP Sues for Divorce

An extraordinary private communication from sponsors of the big (but undersold) fund-raising dinner Wednesday night for the House and Senate Republican campaign committees contains a flat statement that "the Republican party was not involved and ought not to be implicated in the Watergate incident."

That quote, from an April 25 statement by Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, former party chairman, was included in a communication to party fat cats under the letterhead of "New Majority Dinner Committee," which said:

"At no time has the Republican National Committee or its financial arm, the Republican National Finance Committee, or the congressional or senatorial committees, been accused of any wrongdoing in their political activities or handling of campaign funds last year."

The reason for this appeal for mercy, based on the fact that the White House-supported Committee to Reelect the President had no links to the Republican National Committee, is the threatened failure of the fund-raising dinner to yield anything like what it should.

Sponsors of the dinner hoped the claim by Dole that the "Republican party" as such had nothing to do with Watergate would appeal to the party loyalty of regular donors who are just as disillusioned with the Committee to Reelect the President and with Watergate as are Dole and the party professionals.

"The fact remains," said the unsigned letter mailed 10 days ago to 26,000 Republican donors, "that many of our supporters identify these (regular party) committees as part and parcel of what they are reading in their papers. This is very unfortunate because the 'Watergate affair' has had an effect on our fund raising... We cannot let these committees be hurt financially and in turn politically, by activities last year of which they had no part."

No Republican-controlled White House in this century has been criticized so frontally by the regular party organization.

The Last of a Priestly Breed

BERRY'S WORLD

"How can you say your mother and I have nothing in common with you any more? We all like Bette Midler, don't we?"

Priests utter few prayers at the graveside of a cleric. They feel that if he was any good, he doesn't need them; if he wasn't, all the prayers in the world won't help him.

The heavenly petitions at the graveside of Monsignor Leroy McWilliams were perfunctory. He was, I think, the last of a breed of Irish priests who ruled the temporal, as well as the spiritual, welfare of his flock. He was a belligerent bantam so short that, with slight exaggeration, he could walk under the belly of his Great Dane with a baretta on.

His domain was St. Michael's in Jersey City. The Hamilton Park area was once the class of the town. When McWilliams assumed command of the dismal red brick pile, with its rectory on the left and convent on the right, the church was surrounded by slums.

If poverty was prestige, Father McWilliams would have been President of the United States. His people lived in walk-up flats and railroad rooms. His high school was full of bright skinny kids who, in time, would turn to law or larceny.

In the evening, after supper, he held marital councils in his downstairs office. Husbands and wives on the verge of breaking a marriage did not go to lawyers. They went to Father McWilliams' study.

Before he would listen to the dispute, both parties had to agree that they would abide by his decision. He always listened to the wife first. Then the husband. Within 15 minutes, McWilliams looked like a spectator at a tennis match.

Decisions weren't easy. One woman complained that her husband bought a new car, and refused to take her for a ride. It was parked in front of the house two weeks, she said. "Okay," the priest said to the husband. "Your ball."

The husband said he worked hard in an oil refinery. He put in all the overtime he could, and never missed a day's work. His aim was to get $3,000 in the bank. When he had it, his wife insisted that they buy a new car. "The old heap wasn't good enough for her," he said. "So she nagged and picked until I lost my mind. I bought the car. Now, Father, I can't afford the gasoline."

Defense rests. Father told her she was trying to show off to the neighbors, and she could sit in the car in front of the house until her husband had enough money for gasoline. Next case.

He visited St. Francis Hospital, not only to give Extreme Unction to the dying, but to joke and swap stories with the convalescents, Protestants and Jews.

The Jews were the priest's special friends. When a St. Michael's boy got out of prison, no one would employ him. Father called on Jewish merchants and asked a favor. If, while working, the boy stole anything, McWilliams would make good the loss. Jewish merchants on Grove and Henderson Streets employed more crooks than any other group.

At noon, Father walked through the basement of the convent. He looked at the plates of the hooded nuns, to see if they were eating properly. He kept his hands clasped behind his back. Nothing escaped his attention.

His vanity began to show when he was appointed chaplain of the fire department. The priest bought himself a pair of white boots, a white raincoat, and a white helmet. He put a siren on his car and had the automobile painted red. One night a tenement burned down in a roaring inferno.

Black people lived in it. Father McWilliams could hear the screams of people trapped inside. He told me that he wondered how close a priest has to be to give the last rites to departing souls. He didn't even know if they were Catholic or Protestant.

He got close enough for the flames to sear his face — across the street — put his stole on, and extended the mercy of God to all. "I suppose it's a theological question," he told me later, "but I figured that God would understand my intentions — and their need."

He knew everybody, and everyone's requirement for a just father. He walked his parish sidewalks like a cop. The Great Dane's name was Michael, but the monsignor referred to the mutt as "himself."

Once he bought a sailboat and took all the nuns for a day on a lake. When he returned to the dock, he froze me solid when he admitted that he had never sailed a boat. "You could have drowned those Sisters," I said.

"Ah," he said, "God might let a sinner like me drown. But the poor nuns work hard and they never get out. I knew He'd take care of his own."

He's gone. Father McWilliams was the last of a breed...

State Tax Cut . . . Education Money in the Middle

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — A tug-of-war in the legislature concerning a possible tax cut finds the issue of additional money for education right in the middle.

Fiscal experts are considering the desirability of reducing taxes. Education specialists continue to pull for more school dollars.

Already, the pro-education forces have managed to extract from the state purse for schools $25 million in excess of the $98 million Governor Rockefeller included in his state budget.

But they say that amount is still short of the money needed and she points out that it has been three years since aid to education has been increased.

In that time, Mrs. Cook says, the state's share of the total education expenditure has slipped from 49 per cent to about 41 per cent.

Albert B. Roberts, secretary of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee and a top state fiscal expert, disagrees with the education experts that the difference between a 2.5 and a 5.5 per cent increase is significant.

"If we are going to do something for the schools that is significant, it is going to cost us $200-$300 million, and that kind of money just simply is not available," Roberts says.

And Roberts thinks that a tax cut is more important to the citizens and the economy of the state—and he talks about "a psychology of saving, rather than a psychology of spending."

"We have no assurance that money put into schools would produce a tax reduction. The education system could easily absorb that amount (the difference between a 2.5 and a 5.5 per cent hike) without passing a savings on to the taxpayer," he says.

Roberts calculates that a 5.5 per cent hike in school aid would mean on a 70-cent per thousand dollars assessment run.

Roberts says that same crease would mean a 30-cent increase of the state in the long to $80 million; restoration of income tax credits worth $120 million, or repeal of the so-called "hot dog" tax on food items of less than $1 which nets the state $120 million.

Tax cuts being considered by the legislature include a 2.5 per cent reduction in the local money in a tax reduction would mean much more to the economy tax surcharge, amounting to $120 million.

Gasoline Rationing Authority

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation giving President Nixon authority to ration petroleum products, including gasoline, was approved Thursday by the Senate Interior Committee and sent to the Senate.

At the same time, the Office of Emergency Preparedness said that while spot shortages of gasoline may develop, it does not now anticipate that rationing by the federal government would be used this summer.

Darrell M. Trent, acting director of OEP, wrote all state governors expressing concern about the tight gasoline supply and suggesting conservation measures that could be encouraged by the states.

The measures include encouraging use of mass transit or car pools, lower speed on the highways and proper care of cars and tires.

"Gasoline inventories are significantly below the levels of last year at this time," Trent said. "This situation will be more difficult this summer in view of a projected 5.4 per cent increase in demand. Our projections suggest that supplies will be adequate for the country as a whole, but that spot shortages are likely to develop in some areas."

On a related matter, William E. Simon, deputy secretary of the treasury, told the Senate Banking Committee that the administration will rely on voluntary compliance with guidelines in its oil allocation program. However, he said, the oil companies' adherence to the guidelines will be monitored.

The Oil Policy Committee, which Simon heads, has been given general responsibility for drafting an allocation program.

Late last month, Congress gave the President authority to allocate the fuels around the nation where they are most needed, should that become necessary.

The Senate Interior Committee's gasoline rationing bill would authorize the President to allocate petroleum products when he finds there are extraordinary shortages or dislocations in their distribution. The President would be directed to prepare within 60 days a plan for rationing the products.

Biagg, Admits He Took 5th Amendment

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Mario Biaggi, admitting that he "misled" the public about his release today of the minutes of his testimony.

REP. MARIO BIAGGI

The Bronx Democrat said Thursday he refused to answer approximately one dozen questions 18 months ago, not out of fear of incriminating himself, but to protect his daughter from improper questions by a "hostile assistant prosecutor."

He also announced in the television address that he would not ask the U.S. Supreme Court to veil the grand jury minutes but would let stand a federal court order for the release today of the testimony, minus the names of third parties.

He also vowed to stay in the race for mayor.

Two of his competitors in the Democratic mayoral primary, Comptroller Abraham D. Beame and Rep. Herman Badillo, said they hoped the disclosure will end the controversy and enable the candidates to focus on key issues in the campaign.

The third, Assemblyman Albert Blumenthal, said that when Biaggi first swore he did not invoke the Fifth Amendment, we all believed him. As he went to court, we began to believe him less. Now some president of Yonkers Raceway, people won't believe him at all."

For three weeks, Biaggi denied newspaper reports that he ducked some 30 questions about his personal finances during two appearances before a federal grand jury in 1971.

The grand jury was investigating allegations that some congressmen received fees for sponsoring special bills to admit immigrants. No indictments resulted.

Biaggi first called the April 18 reports by the New York Times and Daily News a "complete hoax" and insisted that he answered every question he was asked.

On Thursday, however, he said he went before the grand jury on Oct. 29 and Nov. 26, 1971, answering about 500 questions until "a new line of questioning suddenly developed which was unrelated to immigration matters and my personal finances and assets."

He said he got angry when the questions turned to the employment of his 29-year-old daughter Jacqueline, a psychologist, by a consulting firm. He said she got the job through her father, Martin Tannenbaum, the late president of Yonkers Raceway.

Biaggi and Tannenbaum worked together in Beame's unsuccessful campaign for mayor in 1965.

Biaggi, who described his daughter as a "deeply religious and sheltered person," said she became anguished after received a subpoena and had to be treated four times by a doctor.

Biaggi told of preparing a statement questioning the grand jury's need to bring his daughter into the investigation but was prohibited repeatedly from reading it at his second appearance.

"And so, I did something I now regret. I refused to answer any more questions because I just could not accept the indignity of being refused an opportunity to say something that might save my daughter some embarrassment," he said.

Biaggi said he wished he had stated this position at the outset of the controversy over his testimony and said he was shocked over the leaking of his testimony to the newspapers.

"A crime has been committed by a person who has stolen or leaked the grand jury minutes, in an effort to harm my candidacy," he said.

Anatomy of Psychiatrist's Office Burglary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Around 11 p.m. Sept. 3, 1971, agents of the White House forced their way into the office of a Beverly Hills psychiatrist and rummaged through his confidential medical records.

The psychiatrist was Dr. Lewis Fielding and one of his patients was Daniel Ellsberg, defendant in the Pentagon papers case.

Why did the President's men commit such an act? What did they seek? What did they gain? Some answers can now be pieced together from sworn testimony and official documents.

In June 1971, The New York Times, and later other publications, began printing stories based on the Pentagon's secret history of the Vietnam war. The accounts angered men at the top levels of government.

President Nixon was in delicate and secret negotiations that eventually led to his trips to Peking and Moscow and, nuclear-arms negotiations were moving forward with the Russians. The Paris peace talks still wore on, but the news leaks made it appear that Nixon couldn't keep a secret.

Nixon first tried unprecedented court orders to stop the publication, but the Supreme Court overruled him and the stories resumed.

Then in early July he ordered his chief domestic advisor, John D. Ehrlichman, to conduct a White House investigation of the leaks. Ehrlichman gave the job to his trusted young aide, Egil "Bud" Krogh, then 31.

Krogh hired G. Gordon Liddy, a former FBI agent, and E. Howard Hunt, a former Central Intelligence Agency man recommended by presidential counselor Charles W. Colson. The National Security Council detailed one of its staff, David Young.

Working from room 16 in the basement of the Executive Office Building, the group came to be called the "plumbers," because of their mission to plug news leaks.

Ellsberg, a former Rand Corp. employee, already had admitted giving copies of the secret papers to newsmen, and had been indicted. But Krogh has said in a sworn affidavit that the plumbers received information leading them to suspect that Ellsberg had been part of a conspiracy to engage in espionage.

The FBI had told Krogh that the Soviet embassy in Washington had a copy of the Pentagon papers before the Times began publishing them and Krogh said he suspected a plot "to aid and abet an enemy of the United States." Ellsberg, however, got the documents through his contact with Rand, not from the Russians.

Then a new series of leaks followed, including news stories on Soviet negotiations with India and on the U.S.-Russian Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

Following the SALT leak in August, Nixon summoned Ehrlichman and Krogh. Krogh says Nixon told him "that the continuing leaks of vital information were compromising the national security," and "to proceed with the greatest urgency to determine the source of the leaks."

Earlier, on July 8, Ehrlichman had called the deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency, Marine Gen. Robert Cushman, to tell him that Hunt had been named a White House security consultant. Hunt visited Cushman two weeks later and asked for phony identification papers and disguises to be used to gain information from "an individual whose ideology he was not entirely sure of," according to the CIA's account.

Hunt and Liddy eventually received a tape recorder in a briefcase, a camera disguised as a tobacco pouch, a wig, a device to disguise the voice, a fake Social Security card, fake drivers license and other forged identification.

The men in room 16 were receiving almost daily reports from the FBI, Hunt testified. Ehrlichman said he heard Ellsberg had "moral and emotional problems."

Twice FBI agents tried to interview Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Fielding, but he refused to talk to them. Krogh said the plumbers thought Fielding might have information on Ellsberg's psychological make-up, perhaps even the names of others who might have helped him.

Krogh says Ehrlichman then authorized the plumbers "to engage in covert activity." Hunt and Liddy mapped out a burglary plan.

Liddy and Hunt flew to Los Angeles Aug. 25, registered at the Beverly Hilton under phony names, photographed the exterior of Dr. Fielding's office.

he summoned a CIA man to pick up and develop the film of Fielding's office. A courier met him at Dulles airport near Washington and prints were delivered the same day.

The CIA now had second thoughts about the operation, as a clandestine domestic mission forbidden by law. Gen. Cushman contacted Ehrlichman and the CIA says Ehrlichman agreed and promised to "restrain" Hunt.

he summoned a CIA man to pick up and develop the film of Fielding's office. A courier met him at Dulles airport near Washington and prints were delivered the same day.

Nevertheless, the burglary crew was in Los Angeles a few days later, Sept. 3. Two of the Cubans, disguised as delivery men tricked their way into Fielding's office and left a large green suitcase full of photocopying gear. They left the door unlocked on their way out, Hunt testified.

Hunt watched Fielding's home that night until he was certain he'd gone to bed. Liddy cruised the area near the office, Hunt said, using walkie-talkies to keep in contact with the three who went in. The door trick hadn't worked. A cleaning woman apparently had re-locked the door on her way out. Fielding later reported his office doors had been pried open.

Said Hunt: "It was reported to me that they had gone through every file in Dr. Fielding's office, including the one in his desk, and that there had been absolutely no material in it with the name of Ellsberg on man, who told him that the break-in "far exceeded the scope of any covert activity which had been approved in general in advance." Ehrlichman says he told Liddy and Hunt "not to do this again."

Another burglary attempt, All agree that no other burglaries were attempted until the Watergate raid the following June, which led to the conviction of Liddy and Hunt.

Ehrlichman resigned after his part in the Ellsberg matter was disclosed publicly. Krogh hung on for awhile in his new $42,500-a-year job as under-secretary of transportation, but resigned Wednesday under pressure from his boss.

In quitting, Krogh accepted full responsibility for approving the raid. "I now see that this decision may well have been in the wrong, though prompted by what was then my highest sense of right," Krogh said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices opened lower today as investors fretted anew over inflation and higher interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down more than a point and declines took a 2-1 lead over advances in extremely slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the Federal Reserve's decision to raise the discount rate 1/4 of a point to 6 per cent sidelined investors. Other negative market factors included a hike in steel prices, soaring gold prices abroad and talk of fuel shortages in the rail and airline industries.

Occidental Petroleum, steady at 10%, was the most active issue on the Big Board today.

Broken Window

City Police are investigating a broken window at the Broadway News Shop, 528 Broadway, sometime during Wednesday night. Police were notified early this morning that a large rock had been thrown through a nine by six-foot window at the store, sometime before 6 a.m.

DAMAGED BY FLOOD — One of the many homes destroyed by floods in the St. Louis area is this structure, which is lodged against a levee on the Illinois shore a short distance north of the Interstate 270 bridge across the Mississippi River. More flooding is expected in the St. Louis area over the weekend. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Reaction To Steel Price Hike

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Industry and government officials reacted cautiously to Thursday's price increase announcement by U.S. Steel Corp., setting off speculation that the 4.8 per cent hike on strip and sheet steel products would eventually be passed on to the consumer.

U.S. Steel, the nation's No. 1 producer, said prices would go up June 15 from $8 to $12 a ton on nearly a third of its shipments used chiefly in the production of automobiles and home appliances.

Other major steelmakers, who declined to comment, were expected to follow suit.

Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., indicated that auto producers probably would pass the increase on to consumers.

Ford said his firm would "still maintain the 1973 prices until the end of the model year, but it (the steel increase) will add to our request for a rather substantial increase on 1974 models."

In Washington, the Cost of Living Council gave no indication it would force a rollback but asked U.S. Steel to show justification for the increase. John T. Dunlop, council director, said this was necessary "in view of the very important role of the steel industry in the American economy and the fact that this price increase would affect almost one quarter of the company's steel business."

Fund Raiser Sunday in Paltz

NEW PALTZ — A hike and bike-a-thon, sponsored by the Student Christian Center of New Paltz, will be held Sunday, May 20, at 2 p.m., beginning in the State University College at New Paltz parking lot at the corner of Plattekill Avenue and Route 32 South.

The SCC is an ecumenical campus ministry, supported by five churches in New Paltz. The Rev. Paul Walley, SCC director, said the purpose of the walk and bicycle ride is to "raise money for medical aid for both North and South Vietnamese war victims."

The Rev. Mr. Walley said the funds are being channeled through the American Friends Service Committee, a non-profit Quaker organization.

Thus far the SCC, with its supporting churches, has raised over $200 for the cause.

A core committee of students is planning the event with the Rev. Mr. Walley, who is campus minister to all Christian students at the New Paltz College. The hike route covers five miles, around and through the campus grounds.

Each person who takes part and all ages are invited.

Student Choirs In Saugerties Slate Concerts

SAUGERTIES — The Saugerties Junior and Senior High School Choirs will hold their annual spring choral concert Saturday, May 12, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The program, under the direction of Peter J. Mancuso, will feature the Seventh Grade Chorus, the Junior High School Choir, and the High School Choir.

Highlights of the Seventh Grade Chorus portion will include "Good Morning Starshine," "I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing," and Aaron Copland's "Simple Gifts."

Among the selections by the Junior High School Choir will be Brahms' "Three Folk Songs," "I Got Plenty of Nuttin'" and "More."

The High School Choir will conclude the program with Banchieri's "Counterpoint of the Animals," Brahms' "Wondrous Cool, Thou Woodland Quiet," Diemer's "Three Madrigals," the spiritual "Set Down, Servant," and "Mac the Knife."

Tickets will be available at the door.

Nuclear Plants Discussion Topic

NEW PALTZ — Nuclear power plants will be the topic under discussion at a meeting sponsored by "Only One World" and the Ulster County Environmental Task Force on Saturday at 3 p.m. at the State University College at New Paltz Student Union Building.

A recently released English film, "Nuclear Power Plants, An American Tragedy," will be shown. Following the film, Larry Bogart, of the Citizens Energy Council, will speak briefly concerning power plant hazards and the latest findings about the plants.

According to Edward Balmer, chairman of "Only One World," the meeting is to call attention to the opposition to the construction of proposed nuclear power plants in the Hudson Valley. The citizens of the Hudson River Valley will not tolerate the threat posed by nuclear power plants to their lives, health and property," Balmer said in announcing the meeting.

Caroline Carpino Weds Warren F. Lyons

The Rev. James J. LaBar of St. Joseph's Church, Kingston, officiated at the double ring wedding ceremony of Miss Caroline Carpino and Warren Francis Lyons on Saturday, May 5 in St. Joseph's Mission Church.

James Sweeney, organist, accompanied Joseph Liguori who sang traditional wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carpino of RD 7, Box 110-B, Kingston, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Lyons of Plattkill.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a traditional gown of Nottingham lace and silk organza. A ruffled bib effect and lace accented the bodice. Mrs. Lyons wore a stylized headpiece and carried a single red rose.

The maid of honor was Miss Patricia Carpino of RD 7, Box 110 B, Kingston, sister of the bride. Attendants were Mrs. Theresa Miller, sister of the bride, 132 Bradford Road, Schenectady; and Mrs. Cheryl Clark, James Street, Rosendale.

The attendants' gowns, in shade of yellow, mint green and pink, were of polyester organza, styled with semibishop sleeves and featured printed ruffled aprons. All attendants wore picture hats and each carried a single rose.

Maria Pantuso, Moscow, Pa., and Joanne Mirabell, Tunkannock, Pa., cousins of the bride, served as flower girls. Their blue gowns were styled identically to those of the other attendants and they carried baskets of blue and white daisies.

Robert Mirabell, cousin of the bride, Tunkannock, Pa., served as best man. Ushering were James Clark, James Street, Rosendale; and Frank Miller, 132 Bradford Road, Schenectady.

A reception was held at Liguori's Restaurant, Rosendale.

The former Miss Carpino was graduated from Kingston High School and is employed by Ulster Deli Restaurant Ulster Plaza. Her husband was stationed at Fort Ord, California, while serving in the U.S. Army. He is now employed by Schaller's Automotive Parts, Lucas Avenue, Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. Lyons will make their home at 26 Lucas Avenue, Kingston, when they return from their wedding trip to Ontario, Canada.

Kardian-Wright Nuptials Told

Miss Sharon Helen Kardian of West Nyack and Robert W. Wright of Tillson exchanged nuptial vows on Saturday, April 28 in St. Anthony's Church, Nanute. The Rev. Father Netter of St. Anthony's Church officiated.

The bride is the stepdaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Ryder of West Nyack. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wright of Tillson. Mrs. Wright is also the daughter of the late Stephen J. Kardian.

Miss Linda Kardian of West Nyack served as maid of honor for her sister. Attendants were the Misses Diane Kardian, sister of the bride, West Nyack; Virginia Ford, West Nyack; and Linda Johnson, Yonkers.

The best man was Stanley Wright of Tillson, cousin of the bridegroom. Serving as ushers were Steven, Richard and Donald Kardian, all brothers of the bride of West Nyack.

The bride is a 1970 graduate of White Plains High School and is employed by American Telephone and Telegraph Company, White Plains. Her husband, a 1970 alumnus of Kingston High School, is employed by Kingston Cablevision of Port Ewen.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will reside at Tillson.

Conference in San Francisco

Mrs. Othman Abu-Gheida, Junior League president, and Mrs. Theodore G. Peck IV will attend the 53rd Annual Junior League Conference in San Francisco May 13-17. The "Conference Without Walls" as it has been named by the Association of Junior Leagues, Inc. will use the city itself as its workshop, and expects each delegate to develop the knowledge and skill to deal with the problems she identifies in her own community. Mrs. R. Peter Strauss, National Chairman of Call for Action, Inc. and contributing editor for McCall's will be the keynote speaker giving her vision of the potential of women and of volunteerism.

Mrs. Abu-Gheida, concentrating on Arts and Environment will attend workshops on Urban Planning and study the legislative process relating to environmental planning.

A bus tour is scheduled of sites which are being preserved through precedent-setting legislation. In Sausalito they will focus on innovations in the cooperation of environmental planning and the governmental process. Laurence Halperin, the eminent urban planner, landscape architect and environmental choreographer will open this section with an overview presentation.

Mrs. Peck will attend sessions on Alternatives to Correctional Institutions. Allen Breed, Director of California Youth Authority will discuss the Criminal Justice System, why there is a need for a change and the role the public can play in this area. She will visit the Oakland Police Department and Academy and will learn how the police fit into the criminal judicial system, new concepts in innovative police training and the relationship of the police in the court system. The delegates will also view a film which shows all the court proceedings and the circumstances surrounding a specific drug arrest in a middle class family.

The purpose of the Junior League is to educate and train young women for leadership in the community through volunteerism and it is the hope of this conference that the delegates will return to their communities with the conviction that training and service opportunities for women and for Junior Leagues are infinite.

JUNIOR LEAGUE — Representing the Junior League of Kingston, Inc., at the 53rd Annual Conference in San Francisco May 13-17 will be Mrs. Theodore G. Peck IV, left, public relations chairman, and Mrs. Othman Abu-Gheida, president. The two topics of study will be Arts-Environment and Urban Planning, and Alternatives to Correctional Institutions. Food Tips

The juice from a medium-size lemon should yield about 2 tablespoons.

A teaspoon of lemon juice may be added to rice that is being cooked. The lemon juice helps keep the rice white.

After you take a roast out of the oven let it stand at room temperature for 15 to 20 minutes before carving.

French bread stales very quickly. To freshen a whole or half loaf, dip it in cold water and then heat in a hot oven.

by ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a 45-year-old divorcee who is engaged to marry a 53-year-old widower I'll call Sam. Sam has two daughters in college. Sam's wife, Sylvia, died of cancer a year ago. Sylvia's mother, a widow, had made her home with Sam and Sylvia for the last 20 years. Abby, I know this woman only slightly but she has been cool to me. She is understandably heartbroken over the death of her daughter, and when Sam and I told her we were being married, her disappointment was obvious.

Sam plans to sell his large home and move into an apartment after we marry. His daughters want their own apartment. The problem is Sylvia's mother. We surely can't have her living with us. Sam can well afford to provide her with a lovely home elsewhere, but she has grown so dependent on him I doubt that she could live alone. She never learned to drive, and since her widowhood she's spent her life raising Sylvia's daughters and running Sylvia's home. She has no other family.

Sam and I have discussed it and he thinks I should tell her that our plans do not include her. I think he should tell her. (He insists he can't do it.) What do you think?

TOUCHY PROBLEM
DEAR TOUCHY: She shouldn't have to be told, but if she does, Sam should tell her. It would be an act of kindness if you made a real effort to be friendly with this heavy-hearted woman. Investigate senior citizens' residences and try to help her relocate in the most pleasant and happy surroundings. If she rejects your friendship, you will have at least tried.

DEAR ABBY: When I started going with Henry he used to show up so drunk he could hardly walk, so I'd let him sack out on my couch. It happened so often we finally started living together. After two years we decided to get married.

He buys two quarts of vodka on Saturday, and by Monday it's all gone. That's in addition to three cases of beer. Henry drinks every night, but goes to work in the morning, comes home at 5 p.m. and starts drinking again.

I knew he was an alcoholic when I married him so I can't complain.

I work and draw good money. I wish you would tell me why I stick with this guy. I support myself. Our sex life is zero, and I know I'd be better off without him.

NEEDED
DEAR NEEDED: Your answer is your signature. Some people have a need to be needed. You could be one of those people.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning taking small children to adult affairs such as weddings: I am only 21, but I know that we all have to learn certain things in this life, and the sooner we learn them, the better. Leaving children out of "adult" affairs until they learn to behave like adults is like saying, "I am not going to take you swimming until you learn how to swim!" I'm glad my parents took me, and taught me.

G. Gordon Liddy . . . Powerful Figure in Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — G. Gordon Liddy, convicted as a conspirator in last spring's bug-ging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters, had more power and influence than most people attribute to him, White House sources say. And, according to the White House sources he had power, particularly in formulating and administering policies in the field of narcotics control. Liddy's work for Krogh involved the domestic aspects of narcotics matters. At meetings at the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, Liddy was always there. He represented Bud Krogh and the White House, a White House spokesman for the House source said. "At the first meeting (in early 1972) of the committee on interagency sharing of narcotics information, there was Liddy speaking for the White House. And everybody knew he had Krogh. If you spoke for Krogh into him," the source remarked, "Liddy was being driven around in a chauffeured White House limousine." Liddy apparently had access to the White House limousine pool and was included in social functions of the administration. A guest at one party in 1972 given by Myles J. Ambrose, former head of the Bureau of Customs, said Ambrose walked with his arm around Liddy among the guests and introduced Liddy, saying, "He's one of us. He's one of the good people."

New Paltz Health Committee Passes Four Resolutions

NEW PALTZ A committee formed on Tuesday at the State University College at New Paltz to study and make recommendations on the emergency health care situation on campus, passed four resolutions during its initial meeting. Included was a statement concerning the cause of death of a student stricken while playing basketball, which prompted the formation of the committee. The committee, which has been expanded to include nine members—four students, two faculty members, and three administrators—issued the following statement concerning the death of Alonzo Montague, 18, on Monday at Elting Gymnasium: "The (campus) health center, with its limited resources, provided the utmost in medical care for this specific situation. Joe and Ruth Serraro came home to a '73 Ford Galaxie 500 so they could see the town without having to listen to it.

The Serraro family of North Haledon, New Jersey, bought a house on a quiet suburban street to find relief from the constant rumble and roar of the city. They bought a two-door Ford Galaxie 500 hardtop for the same reason.

"It's easy to drive and amazingly quiet," says Mrs. Serraro. "In fact, we took a trip down to Tom's River right after we got it. My brother-in-law was with us, and he's the finicky one about cars. Well, he kept listening for noises or knocking, and couldn't hear a thing. Finally, he said, 'It rides like a dream.'"

Mr. Serraro made his own quiet discovery. "We were stopped at our local gas station with the window open, and I asked my wife if that was our car making noise. We got out and discovered it was the car next to us. When we got back in, I rolled up the windows, and you couldn't hear a thing. It was remarkable."

The remarkably quiet Ford Galaxie 500 is as easy on the pocketbook as it is on the eyes and ears. In fact, it's one of the big Fords named "Car of the Year for 1973" by Road Test Magazine.

Why not slip quietly down to your local Ford Dealer and test-drive one. You'll see what all the noise is about.

A View of Modern Education

By JON POWERS

ROSENDALE — The once-impregnable barriers that separated high school students from the decision making processes of education have crumbled since "involvement" and "relevancy" became slogans for change in the late 1960's. Just how far those barriers have fallen was detailed during Thursday night's panel discussion sponsored by the Ulster County School Boards' Association.

Old-time and hard-line educators would no doubt shudder today at many of the innovations introduced at the high school level in recent years. But it was the consensus of opinion Thursday night that substantial changes are really only just beginning.

Representatives from three schools comprised the panel: Goshen High School in Orange County, Ontario Central School and Kingston High School.

In each instance, the call was sounded for greater cooperation and communication between students, faculty and administrators. But each school also heralded the advances it has made in those two important areas.

What appeared to be a particularly enlightened approach to greater student involvement was outlined by Dr. Robert E. Leslie, principal of Goshen High School.

Goshen's first step toward increased student participation in the education process, Dr. Leslie explained, was to "de-structure" the very structure of the school.

The Staten Island land designed to be included in Gateway includes the Great Kills Park. Marchi has said he "probably" would favor having parkland included in his project, the South Richmond development plan, which also appears to have little chance of passage in this year's legislature.

Marchi's opposition to the Gateway plans has pitted him against an old rival, Rep. John M. Murphy, D-Staten Island, a prime mover in Congress for the Gateway legislation.

potential problems before they become real problems.

Peter Crosswell, a senior at Goshen High School, said the new system has helped to relax the relationship between students and teachers. "Of course there have been abuses," he added, "but we've been able to handle them so far."

Said Goshen senior Avice Meehan: "The curriculum is shaped around our interests and our needs. Sometimes, the students lose perspective. We don't realize how bad a problem is. But we work out all of our problems with the administration through cooperation, and we have an actual role in running the school."

H. Peter Hoffman, chairman of the student services committee of Kingston's Board of Education, outlined three recent student-administration confrontations that appear to have been resolved — or are in the process of being resolved — amicably.

The first involved a students' demand to distribute literature on school grounds. After numerous meetings between students and administrators, a policy was drawn up to govern the matter. Hoffman said there have been no problems or disputes since.

The second involved a request to allow students to serve as non-voting members of the Board of Education. The school board refused, said Hoffman, but established a "table of organization" to improve communications between all segments of the school community.

Hoffman also cited recent confrontations between black students at Kingston High School and the predominantly white administration. He noted, again, that the problems are being ironed out in a series of meetings between the two sides, and pointed to the recent appointment of a black dean of girls at Kingston High School as a positive step toward the solution of the problem.

John Stefano, principal of Ontario High School, said that the involvement of staff members in school affairs is as much a goal as student involvement. And he said the district continually searches for "the ideal teacher: one who is concerned about what happens both outside and inside the classroom. And, he noted, that two recent "student days" at the high school have helped teachers and administrators realize that students possess both responsibility and originality.

Onteora, sounded a somewhat different theme. She said more aware of the possibilities available for direct involvement in school policies and, as a result, are becoming more concerned about in-stituting meaningful changes in the system.

Dr. George Sullivan, professor of education at the State University College at New Paltz, served as moderator.

Gateway National Park— Year's Delay Predicted

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — State Sen. John J. Marchi, R-Staten Island, is threatening to delay the development of the Gateway National Recreation Area in New York harbor.

New York City cannot turn over land on Staten Island and Jamaica Bay in Queens to the federal government for the proposed national park until the state legislature authorizes the Board of Estimate to do so.

An aide to Marchi said Thursday that legislation to turn over the land to the Department of Interior will not be acted on this year.

The Interior Department has not provided any information on what the Gateway plans will involve, Marchi's aide said.

"It should not be interpreted that we're against it," the aide explained. "It may be good. It may be bad. But what's it going to be? We'd like to hear from the federal government on this."

Congress authorized the Gateway area last year, and the Department of Interior has requested a $6.2-million appropriation to start work on the national park.

The Gateway Citizens Committee, which supports the development of the national park, said Thursday that Marchi was "sabotaging" federal funding for the area.

"That's all subterfuge," a committee spokesman said in reference to Marchi's desire for information on Gateway. "It's pretty clear what you're putting in a recreation area. Mr. Marchi just doesn't want the Great Kills Park in the area."

The Staten Island land designed to be included in Gateway includes the Great Kills Park. Marchi has said he "probably" would favor having parkland included in his project, the South Richmond development plan, which also appears to have little chance of passage in this year's legislature.

Marchi's opposition to the Gateway plans has pitted him against an old rival, Rep. John M. Murphy, D-Staten Island, a prime mover in Congress for the Gateway legislation.

Even Wilt Admitted Knicks Were Better

PAST THE WILT — New York Knicks Willis Reed gets the ball past LA Lakers' Wilt Chamberlain as the Knicks work their way to a 102-93 victory and second NBA Championship in four years. Reed was named the series MVP. (UPI)

To Willis Reed

Second Time Means More

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Willis Reed, the Most Valuable Player in the NBA championship series for the second time in four years, said Thursday night the New York Knicks' second title meant more to him than the first.

"The first championship is always a great thrill," said the 6-foot-10 Knick center, "but it means more the second time around."

Heavily-perspiring in a heavily crowded and happy New York dressing room after the Knicks' 102-93 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers, Reed said: "It's great to come back and do it all again. I got down at

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Four in a row seems almost impossible," sadly commented the giant Wilt Chamberlain, yet he and his Los Angeles Lakers teammates had lost their National Basketball Association title to New York in a virtual sweep.

"New York was the better team," added the 7-foot-1 Laker after the Knicks had hung up a 102-93 victory Thursday night and a 4-1 winning margin in playoff series games.

They had lost the opener and then come back to whip the defending champions four straight and there were few excuses.

"They are well balanced, have tremendous passing and so many good shooters that you can't concentrate on one man. The key to the series was that the defense stopped our running game."

The Knicks' defense throttled the Lakers, particularly when there was a chance of Los Angeles pulling ahead.

Ironically, the Lakers had wanted to play New York in the final series rather than Boston and cheered when the Knicks beat the Celtics in the Eastern playoffs.

Last year, it was Los Angeles 4-1 over the Knicks, who had won the NBA title in 1970 by beating the Lakers.

"I think we had more depth than we did last time we won the title," commented Knicks' Coach Red Holzman. "We didn't have Jerry Lucas, Earl Monroe or Dean Meminger then."

Monroe took scoring honors for the finale on the New York side with 23 points and Bill Bradley, the Rhodes scholar, added 20.

Dave DeBusschere, who starred two nights before with 33 points, tallied just one field goal and sprained his right ankle in the fourth quarter when he finally did reach the scoring list.

The Lakers trailed by 14 points early in the fourth quarter, cut the margin to four and then sagged as Monroe and Willis Reed whipped in seven consecutive points.

Reed, the nine-year veteran pro from Grambling, proved tremendous. Three years ago when the Knicks beat the Lakers for the title he was the most valuable in the series. Then his knees were injured. Last year he didn't even play in the finals.

This time he showed more quickness than any time during the season.

Again, a national magazine voted him most valuable and he received a new car.

In the final game, he scored 18 points, grabbed 12 rebounds and had seven assists.

The Lakers had only one excuse. Back court ace Jerry West was hampered by strained hamstring muscles in both legs. The right was bandaged for the finale and he scored only 12 points.

"With Jerry hurt, our quickness, our speed and our running game just aren't the same," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman, and even efforts of 28 points by Gail Goodrich and 23 by Chamberlain could not compensate for the bad West underpinnings.

The Knicks won a total of $100,000 from the final series and $197,500 overall. Los Angeles gained $65,000 from the finals and $167,500 for the three playoff sets. Generally the pot is split into 12 to 14 shares, meaning each New Yorker would get about $15,000.

By the way, the Knicks' victory was the 18th in the history of the franchise, tying the record of the Boston Celtics.

For the winners, Jerry Lucas commented, "I really believe this is the most intelligent team in the history of pro basketball. Everybody on this team is thinking all the time. We don't overpower anybody, we have finesse them. To do that, you have to play smart, intelligent basketball."

DeBusschere observed, "Of course there's nothing like the first championship (1970) but this means a lot too, because it means that we have sustained the fact we are a championship team and nobody can say our double figures. McMillian had a 19 for the Lakers but in the unsuccessful final game defense, the ex-champs shot only 41 per cent from the floor while New York hit on 47 per cent of its shots."

It Was Eighteenth Time for Montreal

CHICAGO (UPI) — The only record that stood out for the Montreal Canadiens Friday was possession of the Stanley Cup. The Canadiens tripped the Chicago Black Hawks, 6-4, in their best-of-seven championship series to win hockey's most valued prize for a record 18th time.

One of the Montreal veterans, Yvan Cournoyer, got the winning goal on a freak rebound, picking up a bouncing puck 20 feet from the Hawks' net after it had bounced off the plexiglas behind the net on a shot over the cage.

His shot went into the next to second time for the six games of the series, they failed to hold the lead. Tony Esposito was "off" a two-goal lead. Pit Martin, who scored his second playoff hat trick this year, tallied twice in 54 seconds of the first period to put the Hawks in front 2-0. But Montreal came back with goals by Henri Richard, Pete Mahovich, and Rejean Houle for a 3-2 lead.

Chicago thereafter tied the score twice on goals by Dave Kryskow and Martin, but Montreal in the game three times broke out of a tie to go ahead.

The Hawks made a fight of it in the finale, although for the goals to break a playoff record of 54 set by Montreal in Boston in a 1971 quarter-final series. The only gloom for the Canadiens was the fact that Claude Larose, who slid backward into the net in the opening minutes of the second period, was carried from the ice on a stretcher and X-rays at a hospital showed he suffered a broken leg.

The victory paid off with McKenzie and Fred Stanfield, $15,000 per man for the Canadiens, champions of the NHL's East Division, while the losing Black Hawks, West game-winner for the cup, broke Division champions, each the record of 14 set by Frank earned $10,000.

That Gilmore Man Does It Again

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Artis Gilmore, with 28 points and 21 rebounds, led the Kentucky Colonels to a 109-93 victory over the defending champion Indiana Pacers midway through the final period of the American Basketball Association title, 3-0, on Thursday night.

It marked the fourth time in six games that the visiting team won, forcing a seventh at Louisville Saturday afternoon.

Kentucky outshot and outscored the Pacers 44-33 in the first half, and 33-25, and two quick field goals by Don Freeman with 40 seconds left to play in the third quarter, Kentucky then scored to make it 80-76.

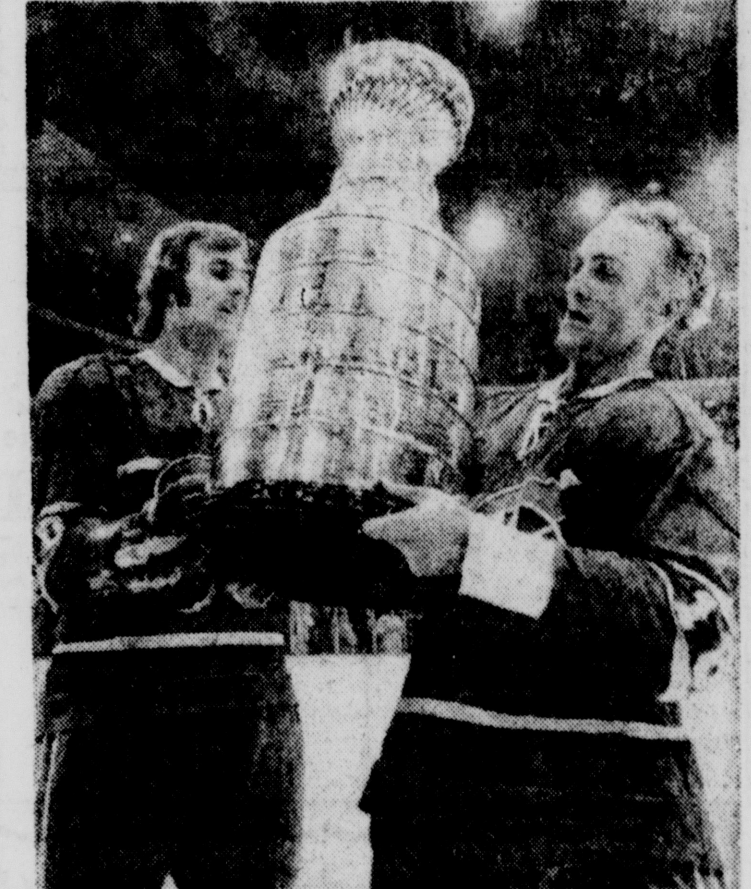

The Colonels opened the final period by tossing in eight straight points, four of them by it in the third quarter when Dampier and two each by Isell it narrowed the gap to two and Jim O'Brien, to grab a 12-point lead at 88-76 and continued to dominate play until the end.

George McGinnis, the league's No. 2 scorer, paced Indiana with 26 points but Mel Daniels was held to 17 and Freddie Lewis had 16.

Indiana went without a field goal in the final period until little Billy Keller connected with 5:47 left to play.

Something for Whitey

By HERSCHEL NISSENSOI
Associated Press Sports Writer
When you manage the Texas Rangers, you have to scramble sometimes to find a silver lining. So it was with Whitey Herzog Thursday night.

"The only good thing I can say about this is that they can only chalk up one loss against us," the rookie skipper said after the Oakland A's pounded the Rangers 17-2.

Not only that, but Herzog even managed to make himself believe that the outcome might have been different...

Elsewhere in the American League, the Chicago White Sox edged California 4-3 in 12 innings, Kansas City trounced Detroit 8-2 and Boston nipped Cleveland 4-3. In the only National League action, San Francisco beat St. Louis 6-3.

It resembled batting practice for the A's as nine of them got more than one hit, including rookie catcher Tim Hosley, just up from the minors.

Reggie Jackson doubled home the first two runs against Mike Paul. Ray Foshee

Low put together games of 203, 226, 192 for a 621 team series that helped The Doctors Five get into the money with 2887. Gerry Woodvine furnished 601, Ron Brandt 626 and Bob Coisson 545.

The Doctors stacked games of 998, 971 and 918.

Lowe then hammered out 613 in a 1202 doubles set with Woodvine and finished his nine-game stint with 225-606 in singles. Six of Lowe's games were for 200 or better.

Joe Fautz, competing in his first ABC tournament, led the singles shooting with 639 off a

Your Horoscope

Saturday, May 12

GENERAL TENDENCIES: to July 21) You can get busy and make your home much more attractive and smooth running early. Kin are cooperative, and you can do some entertaining that pleases all. Make a good impression on friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Complimenting kin or business contacts if they deserve it is wise and makes them happier. Tell your friends how they can help you. Avoid one who gossips a great deal.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Money now how to handle money affairs satisfactorily; come to a better understanding with others. Listen to an expert concerning stocks and bonds, other valuables.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are highly magnetic now and should get out in social circles, to business meetings, etc., where you can make the most of this day, accomplish much. Dress well. Avoid one who makes you nervous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan more time for being with that person you like so much TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Look about you, and see where you can make needed improvements and do so. Shop around later for any items of clothing you need. Take care you do not go beyond your means or you will regret it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The right Saturday to get into the amusements that will make you feel much better. Show mate you are devoted. You have been taking this person for granted for a long time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22

and be happy, gain your fondest aim, and please mate, also. Evening is fine for increasing happiness with mate. Avoid bickering, though.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) State your aims to good pals and allies so you gain their assistance and goodwill as well. Being very sociable now is pleasant and profitable. Avoid some situation that leads to trouble, expense.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Wear your nicest clothes and go out for social pleasures that can lift your spirits. Make a fine impression on a bigwig. Something of a civic nature can also bring excellent results. Grow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Ideal day to make plans for a vacation in the near future. Get the data you need for such. Being mild and more open-minded with others gets you good results. Avoid that stumbling block that is in the path of your progress.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan to have a good time with one who is close to you. Get into the activities that you mutually like, since the planets are very favorable. Follow your hunches. Steer clear of an irate associate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people with much charm, with whom both parents and others can have much pleasure. The nature is a peaceful one and will do much to bring harmony to others. There is the ability to cooperate with people and the professions that require such a talent are best, as well as precision and neatness. Permit to follow whatever religion most appeals to this youngster. Not much liking for sports here.

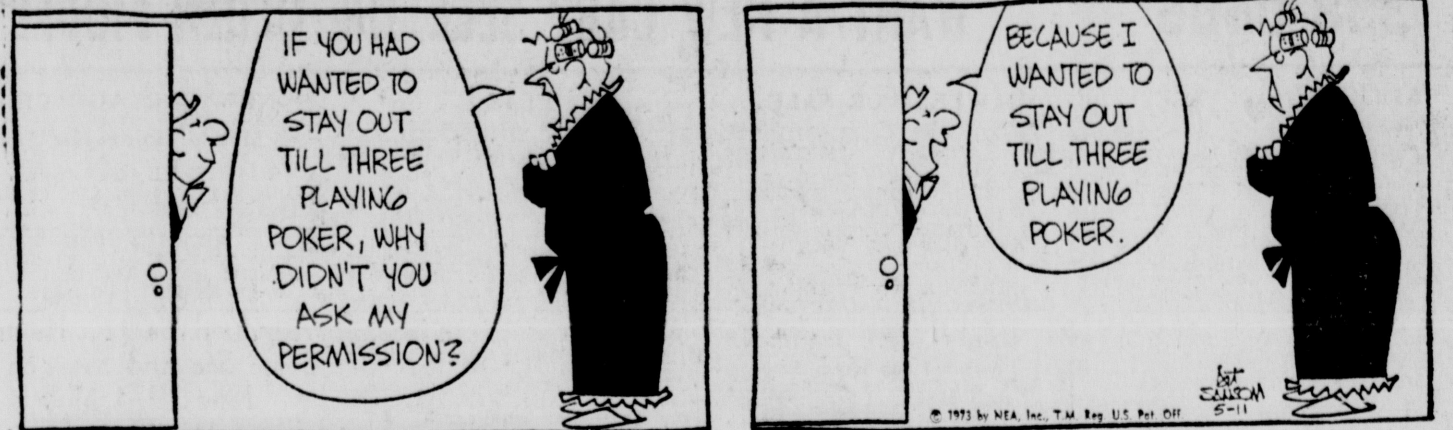

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

"Back in those days, people sure were crazy about antiques!"

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

BREAK: (Q.) For about two years this guy and I have liked each other. At least, we did like each other. We got along real well until I went to visit my cousin. When I came back everyone told me he didn't like me any more. I believed them, and got very upset.

A couple of nights later, I was walking to a girl friend's house. He saw me and asked me to go to the beach with him that Sunday. I told him what I had heard. We got into a big fight, and I walked away.

Sometimes I see him now, in the street, and he always looks at me. Or when he drives by he'll fake like he's going to hit me.

Do you think I should give him a second chance? If so, how do I go about doing it?—Suffering in Florida.

(A) It is unwise to accept hearsay evidence as fact. When possible you should get facts from the source. In this case, the source was your boy friend, or former boy friend.

When he asked you to go to the beach with him, you should have gone, and you should have talked with him there, quietly and calmly, about what your friends had told you. Then you should have asked him what the truth was.

This would have given him a chance to tell you whether there was any truth in what they said, and if so what the facts were.

Give him a chance now. Call him and tell him you are sorry you started a fight. Tell him you would like to talk things over with him if he wants to.

He may say no, but I believe he will say yes.

BOTHERED: (Q.) George is black and I am white. He likes me a lot. I don't like him except as a friend. He follows me around. The other day he walked me home from school.

I would tell him to get lost but I don't want to hurt his feelings. We are both 12. Please don't say anything about too young.—Pursued in Indiana.

(A) Talk to George honestly but kindly. Tell him you want to be his friend but not his girl friend. Ask him to respect your wishes. If he does not, ask your parents to help you.

All this is a procedure you would follow with any boy who bothered you—not just with George.

Some Provocative Programs

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — As television viewers know provocative programs are available the year round despite the "regular season" promotion arbitrarily emphasized by the networks for monetary reasons.

All you have to do is keep your eyes open and not pay much attention to what the networks are pushing in any given week, at any time of the year, because their interests very often don't coincide with the genuine interests of viewers.

At any rate, among the provocative upcoming network programs are these:

—Two broadcasts of CBS-TV's "Look Up and Live" series, this Sunday and the following one, about embattled Northern Ireland.

This Sunday's program presents "Leading Irish Catholic and Protestant clergymen arguing their views on the causes of the ... dilemma and the potential role of churches in reconciling the various factions."

A week later, on May 20, the series offers "Catholic and Protestant laymen from Belfast giving their opinions on the current conflict—the problems of social and economic equality and the need to overcome the painful memories of past hostilities. They tell of specific actions they have taken toward bringing people together."

The NBC-TV "Today" series during the week of June 4-8, when it will emanate from the United Kingdom. There will be origins from London, a Welsh mining town, Scotland, Liverpool and Bath, and a filed report from Northern Ireland, ca." A June 6 CBS-TV hour in a two-and-a-half-hour special, "Portrait of Stalin," this simulated, improvised "inter-view" (with Eric Sevareid), commercial network, with the portrays England's George III broadcast trying to put into three critical stages of his historical perspective the life of reign during and after the late Soviet leader.

The two new courses of work says that Sevareid "as CBS-TV's college credit "Sum-mer Semester" series beginning the week of May 20: "The Immigrant in American Life." And "Practical English for Hispanic Americans."

A rebroadcast by CBS-TV answers are based on fact, Aug. 24 of its brilliant however, since the actor production of Arthur Miller's extensively studied the man he "Death of a Salesman," with Lee J. Cobb, Mildred Dunnock, George Segal, James Farentino, Albert Dekker, Edward and Sevareid combined their talents about two years ago in a two-hour presentation, and another CBS-TV show, "A although CBS-TV said recently Conversation With Lord North," it would be seen late this spring in the Prime Minister of George schedule anytime.

Network summary says the first broadcast and the upcoming one are the initial presentations of a series entitled "The interview series will offer, in a switch of tone, a talk with the popular singing group The Fifth Dimensions, who recently re-united before leading the turned from a goodwill tour of chronicling people and events Eastern Europe and Turkey on involved with the fight for U.S. behalf of the State Department, independence.

The unlucky expert had caught us again. Here is his sad story:

"I opened the king of spades. My partner played the deuce so I shifted to the jack of diamonds. He played the eight and South was in with the queen. He entered dummy with a club and led the jack of hearts for a finesse."

"I took my king and led the diamond 10. Dummy's king lost to my partner's ace. He led a third diamond and it was 'Katie bar the door.' South ruffed, drew trumps and claimed. Couldn't my partner have realized that if I held a five-card spade suit I would have led a second spade?"

"Hmmmmp" we said as we escaped.

Our "Hmmmmp" was by no means an agreement with our friend's analysis. We give him full blame for the debacle.

To start with, he had over-called with a four-card suit when he also held four cards in the unbid suit. A takeout double or pass would have been better action with his hand.

Views of GOP Governors

Connally Rated a Longshot

NEW YORK (AP) — Several moderate Republican governors say former Democrat John B. Connally faces a difficult task in establishing his Republican credentials sufficiently to win the 1976 GOP presidential nomination.

That view was expressed in interviews during the Republican governor's conference by Govs. Daniel J. Evans of Washington, Francis W. Sargent of Massachusetts, Christopher S. Bond of Missouri, Robert D. Ray of Iowa and John A. Love of Colorado.

However, two conservatives, Govs. Stanley K. Hathaway of Wyoming and Jack Williams of Arizona, said they thought the former Texas governor, named Thursday as a part-time White House consultant by President Nixon, won't be at any disadvantage if he challenges more established Republicans for the 1976 nomination.

The three-day GOP governors' conference winds up tonight with a state dinner at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The governors scheduled a day-long political discussion today at New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's Pocantico Hills estate in suburban Westchester County. Newsmen were excluded.

The Watergate case is one subject that presumably won't be on the agenda as the governnors discuss ways to assume a larger role in the GOP. The governors decided Wednesday night against issuing a joint statement on the scandal now shaking the Nixon administration.

However, Watergate and the indictment of former Nixon cabinet officers John M. Mitchell and Maurice H. Stans dominated much of the conversation of the governors on Thursday.

Gov. Winfield Dunn of Tennessee, vice-chairman of the Republican governors, commented "how tragic it is." Bond said, "I hope they'll have a fair trial and, if they are found guilty, that they will be appropriately punished."

Some of the governors mixed their statements that Watergate wouldn't hurt Republican candidates in 1974 with fears that failure to get to the bottom of the scandal could be damaging.

Ray said it could be damaging in 1974 if it is not completely cleared up.

Confidence that President Nixon is moving to clear up the Watergate matter was expressed in speeches Thursday by Republican National Chairman George Bush and presidential counselor Anne Armstrong.

"Without downgrading the ugliness of Watergate, the Republican party is alive and well," Bush said.

Skylab Countdown Moves Smoothly

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Skylab 1 astronauts conclude training and receive final major preflight physical examinations today as a dual countdown moves smoothly toward next week's doubleheader launching of America's first space station mission.

Space agency doctors will examine Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin for several hours to determine their fitness for the mission and to gather medical data for inflight and postflight comparison.

The physicals were scheduled for Houston's Johnson Space Center, where the spacemen late today wind up training for the marathon four-week flight with a session in the Skylab simulator.

Saturday is scheduled as a day off, and on Sunday the astronauts fly to Cape Kennedy, space for long periods, and the emphasis will be on physical condition.

Kerwin, who is a physician, will make repeated on-the-spot checks of himself and his fellow crewmen, including the drawing of blood samples and monitoring heart, blood pressure and respiration.

In a recent interview, Kerwin said "before NASA can embark on future long-duration manned space projects, man's ability and usefulness in space over long periods must be assured. This can be done only through a careful study of man's physiological, psychological and social adjustments as they occur in flight. And this we will be able to do for the first time in Skylab."

Conrad, Weitz and Kerwin also will conduct scientific, earth resources and space manufacturing tests while orbiting 270 miles high. Later in the year, the same laboratory will be visited by the Skylab 2 and 3 crews, each for 56 days.

NASA reported the count-downs on the Saturn 5 and Saturn 1B rockets were progressing smoothly. The Saturn 5 is to boost the Skylab and the Saturn 1B the astronauts, who will ride in a modified Apollo spacecraft.

Anti-Impoundment Bill Passes Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Four times this year federal courts have ruled President Nixon violated the Constitution when he decided last December not to spend more than $12 billion appropriated by Congress, some of it over his veto.

Thursday, the Senate voted 66-24, to try to make it illegal for any president to impound funds in that manner unless Congress ratifies the impoundment within 60 days.

At the same time, it voted 86-4, to spend even less than Nixon proposed in his budget for fiscal 1974, which starts July 1.

The budget called for spending $268.7 billion. The Senate voted to hold spending to a ceiling $700 million below that figure. If it appropriates over the ceiling, all programs would be cut back proportionately.

The bill was sent to the House, where the Rules Committee is working on similar legislation.

But anything Congress passes in this field is likely to be vetoed. Thursday's Senate vote was slightly larger than the two-thirds majority needed to override a veto.

Since Nixon's December impoundments—which he said were in the interest of "economy, fighting inflation and reversing Congress' spending priorities—federal courts in St. Louis, Minnesota and the District of Columbia have ruled he acted illegally.

Their decisions, if upheld, would free impounded funds for highways, disaster loans, water pollution and the Office of Economic Opportunity, which Nixon sought to put out of business until a court said he could not override congressional lawmaking power.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., said his anti-impoundment bill

"is designed to protect something which is more valuable to the people of the United States than money—that is the Constitution."

"There is not a syllable in the Constitution which gives a president any power to impound any money," he said.

But Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr., D-Va., a fiscal conservative, said: "If this measure is enacted, Congress will be saying to the President, 'By law, you must spend every dollar we appropriate.' I do not think that is reasonable or sound."

Mideast Peace Agreement Reported

BEIRUT (UPI) — Palestinian guerrillas and Lebanese authorities were reported in agreement today on a seven-point plan to end eight days of fighting that tapered off Thursday to a few scattered attacks throughout the country.

The third cease-fire since the fighting broke out May 2 apparently was taking hold in Lebanon's major cities, which are under an army-imposed curfew.

Beirut newspapers credited the relative calm to the intervention of Arab peace mediators, including Arab League Secretary General Mahmoud Riad and guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat.

But there was sporadic fighting Thursday in Lebanon's southern, northern and eastern regions.

Lebanese Air Force jets for the third straight day hit guerrilla positions, bombarding guerrilla leaders had reached an operating in some areas of the Klat military air base near seven-point peace agreement Beirut.

Lebanon's northern border with Syria.

A customs checkpoint at El-Arida, on the Syrian-Lebanon border, came under guerrilla attack and saboteurs blew up a bridge at Chadra, eight miles west of the Syrian border.

An army communiqué said "armed men," a Lebanese euphemism for Palestinian guerrillas, opened fire on the army-guarded radar center near Beirut's Sports City and wounded one soldier. The sports complex is a few hundred yards from the shell-pocked Sabra Palestinian refugee camp that came under heavy attack by government troops last week.

The only death reported Thursday was that of a man killed by sniper fire in the south Lebanon city of Sidon. The killing prompted Lebanese authorities today to issue warnings to city dwellers to watch for snipers.

Wave of Buying At Gold Markets

LONDON (AP) — A new wave of buying hit European gold markets today, sending the metal to new peaks amid expectations that $100 an ounce would be reached soon. Bullion opened in London at $96.05 an ounce, a dollar above Thursday's close. It was raised another 25 cents at the morning fixing.

The price was up 37½ cents an ounce at $96.125 in Zurich.

The record high followed a steady climb all week that has taken the price up more than $6 an ounce.
